

Angry at Being Forgotten; Gets Hit with Brick

A man was sent to the hospital with a concussion and skull fracture suffered when a friend used a brick as a hammer to hit the man in the head.

Angry because his two buddies had forgotten to take him with them to Wilmington after they promised they would, Allegario Valle made repeated attempts to pick a fight with Juan Gonzales as Gonzales and Carlos Torres, both "wet-backs," returned.

Torres repeatedly separated Calle from Gonzales till finally Gonzales took a brick at the West Coast Brick Co. as Valle made one of his advances and knocked the brick against Valle's forehead, according to the account told Detective Captain Ernie Ashton.

The two "wet-backs" have been turned over to the immigration authorities. Valle refused to prosecute.

One, Ignacio Armenta Guerrero, served as material witness of the episode, which occurred recently.

KNOW YOUR REALTY BOARD

By GRACE HINSHAW

As we go to "Press" this week, our spotlighted broker is probably fly-casting for trout in the High Sierras. Jack Pettit is an assiduous young real estate broker, having been in this business for the past four years in this area. Along with this, he is a zealous stream fisherman, with this zeal focused particularly on those fresh water streams in the High Sierras. It takes some efficient handling to blend this pleasure with his business, but once in awhile it hits just about right.

Jack is a native of North Carolina, having been born in Asheville, where he had his schooling, being graduated just in time to be welcomed with open arms into the Army Air Force.

After a tour of duty overseas during World War II, Jack returned to open a Brake and Wheel Alignment shop in Harbor City. Somewhere along the line Jack had been introduced to the real estate and insurance business which appealed to him, and he wasn't able to forget it. So, with study at home and a period of apprenticeship, he opened his own office—The Pettit Realty—at 1872 W. Pacific Coast Highway, Lomita, and has two men working with him—Herb Pettit and Delbert Vaughn.

Jack is an active member of the Masonic Lodge and the Lomita Optimists. He is a former member of the Board of Directors and the Multiple Listing Committee of our local group, the Torrance-Lomita Realty Board.
